Digital Payment Technologies Names New Senior Vice President, Sales

Vancouver, B.C.— Andrew Scott, Chief Executive Officer at Digital Payment Technologies (DPT), is pleased to announce that Chris Chettle has been appointed the company's new Senior Vice President, Sales.

"For over five years, Chris has made a very valuable contribution to DPT with his work in business development, project management, customer service, and marketing," states Scott. "Chris has developed valuable insight into our clients and the markets in which they operate. We are very pleased that his knowledge and capabilities will be used to continue the revenue growth of the company and to reinforce the long-term relationships we have with our clients."

As a result of this announcement, DPT's Client Services department will shift its reporting responsibilities from Marketing to Sales in order provide our clients with a seamless customer service experience. Management for Marketing and Product Management will remain with Chris in the interim while the company searches for a new Vice President, Marketing.

Chris has been involved in high technology sales and marketing management for over 20 years. Prior to joining DPT, Chris worked as the National Sales Manager for a $48 million telecommunications distributor. He has also held management and sales positions in companies working in the fiber optic, telecommunications, and cable television industries. Chris holds a Bachelor of Commerce degree in Marketing from the University of British Columbia.

About Digital Payment Technologies

Digital Payment Technologies is an innovative leader in the design, manufacture, and distribution of electronic parking meters, management software, and online services for the multi-billion-dollar parking industry. The company's products provide complete financial tracking, control, and reporting on parking revenue collected by cities, municipalities, universities, parking management companies, private operators, and national parks, from customer payment through to bank deposit. In 2007, DPT was named Emerging Company of the Year by the British Columbia Technology Industry Association and placed on Deloitte's Technology Fast 50 and Fast 500 lists for the second year in a row as one of the fastest growing high technology companies in Canada and North America.
